COMPLETED JOURNEY

We miss the dear face at the window
That was wont to greet us of yore,
And one sweet voiced welcome is lacking,
As we enter the open door.

But memories of her come thronging,
And, almost, she is with us here,
Just as well seems to hide the loved features,
And the eyes that saw always so clear.

All the work and the good deeds that
Even her mind planned so well,
And the hands so helpful and tender—
Can it be they have waved farewell?

Alas! at eve when day's work is finished
And the twilight comes quiet and grey,
They will hasten to light up the home nest,
Because it was ever her way.

To keep the glad home fires burning
With a welcome for every one;
To her there were never shadows
For she always looked toward the sun.

Her life was so full of love's brightness
That she who knew felt its glow,
So our hearts grew heavy with sadness
When God called her to onward go.

Yet to her it was only a journey
That should end near the Great White Throne
Where she waits in God's beautiful country
To welcome her loved ones home.

Midst the hills of old New Hampshire
Her casket is laid for aye,
But the soul on pinions of swiftness
To Heaven has hastened away.

And though often our feet may falter
While our hearts beat heavy with pain,
In Heaven, where it's always "June time"
We shall find and greet her again.

Bethel, December, 1916.

WATERFORD

Pollyanna Club Christmas Tree

The Pollyannas met Tuesday evening, Dec. 26, with Mrs. C. E. Hill at South Waterford, with entire Pollyanna family present and Emmie Young and Ethel Swett as visitors. Sewing was laid aside on this evening and the club and its visitors entered into the enjoyment of unloading a well filled Christmas tree. Mr. being tabooed at these meetings, there was no one for Santa Claus, but the club's turn at getting a gift from the tree and passing it to whom it belonged. The Pollyannas and their visitors were well remembered with all manner of inappropriate gifts and there was much merriment when some of them were brought to light. The heart of Mrs. L. R. Rounds (the famous overseas lady) was made glad by the gift of a pair of miniature rubber boots to wear this summer when overseas would seem entirely inappropriate. Mrs. W. W. Abbott had unexpected good luck in the matter of her memorabilia of her failings. It is perhaps safe to say that Mrs. W. W. Fillebrown had more presents than anyone else, but that caused no trouble. Among Blaine Young's gifts was a handkerchief with her favorite monogram. Emmie Young received a face cloth in case, with which she was enjoined in up to date verse to keep her face clean. After the tree was dismantled refreshments of raspberry mousse, assorted cookies and divinity fudge were served. The club meets next with Mrs. L. R. Rounds on Monday evening, Jan. 8th.

Town of Otisfield Reminiscences, etc.

Written for the Advertiser
Granville Fernald, South Waterford

In continuation of my recollections of people and places and happenings in my native town in the time of my boyhood, I wish to relate some facts of interest to myself which, I hope, may refresh the minds of this growing generation of readers in the matter of local history.

I remember the names and places of residence of nearly every family in the town as far back as 1840, when I was 12 years old. Of course, I was best acquainted with them of my nearest relatives, the grandparents, uncles, aunts, cousins and more distant relatives, who lived in nearby or remote neighborhoods. These relationships comprised the names of some of the oldest and most numerous families in town, at that time the most active and successful in the various industries and identified with the educational, moral and religious advancement of that period.

In my first article, I mentioned the fact of the coming to the town in the latter part of the 18th century of Joseph Wright and three sons, Benjamin, Thomas and Nathan, who settled in the eastern part of the town on an extensive tract of land which by division became the large and thriving homesteads of the three brothers and the birthplaces of two generations of descendants to the number of eighty-one, nearly all of whom grew to active maturity. Abigail, the only daughter of the pioneer Joseph, as was mentioned, married Enoch Spurr of Spurr's Corner and was the mother of ten children, of whom all but one married and the descendants of this pioneer family are numerous in New England, only a very choice remnant yet remaining on the "Old Homestead." Besides Joseph and three sons of East Otisfield (Wright's Corner and vicinity) and the daughter, Mrs. Enoch Spurr, the oldest son Joseph settled in Raymond, now Casco; another son, James, settled in Hollis, Mass., where his five sons were born. Jonathan, the youngest son, was the father of the three Otisfield Wrights, settled and raised eleven children in Sebago. James Wright son of James of Hollis, came to Otisfield in 1816 for a wife, and chose his cousin, Margaret Trowbridge Spurr of Spurr's Corner, whose grandparents, Mrs. Gertrude Barrows of Otisfield and Mrs. Grace Gay of the Spurr name and fame extant, so far as I know in Otisfield, of descendants of Enoch the Pioneer. There were other Spurr families in Otisfield of excellent character and descendants, yet living in the town, but not related to the Wrights.

My authority for the history of this pioneer family is derived from "The Wrights' genealogical, a record of Thomas Wright of Dedham and Medfield (in Mass.) and of his descendants, 1636-1890." The author and compiler was William Ward Wright of Milwaukee, Wis. From this remarkable history of a family whose descendants numbered more than 150 besides more than fifty born elsewhere, nearly all of whom grew to mature age in their native homes; and were mostly living about the last mid-century (1850). It is interesting to note from U. S. Census reports that in 1850 Otisfield had 1,201 inhabitants, but in 1910—six years ago—its population numbered only 632. Where are they gone—the missing ones? They have gone to help populate other states of the West and South; some gave their lives to the cause time; many have scattered to other towns and States and are witnesses to the fact that Otisfield is a good place to be born in, and to immigrate from; and if we inquire where the balance of the natives are, we will be pointed to the increasing size of the cities of the dead, their cemeteries.

I have devoted most of my article to the statistics of the Wrights in Otisfield in the last two centuries. There were other families of numerous members; the Scribners, the Holdens, the Smiths, the Andrews, the Edwards (South Otisfield) and other families who I remember as numerous in members old and young. In some cases their names in the old town are obsolete, and their form or existence but a tradition.

Do not tell me I am knocking or disparaging my dear old native town in the paragon of its people of the present time. This is only a comparative statement of conditions in the old times and the new. The beauty of situation, grandeur of near and distant landscape views, fertility of its soil, intelligence and go-ahead-iveness of its people, its good roads, and surpassing inducements for investment of wealth in the reclamation and occupation of the abandoned lands of the town are the old town are obsolete, and their form or existence but a tradition.

BIG BARN DOOR SKETCHES

Purely Personal and Mostly About Myself and Early Career.

The directory was a pictorial affair containing a dozen full page pictures showing mills, car shops, residences of prominent citizens, etc.

I remember the trouble of getting a satisfactory "cut" of the Granite Quarry Mills. There were three brothers, Charles, John and Frank Busiel and each had a different notion of how the mill should look in print. At that time these mills were said to be the largest hosiery factories in the world and consequently must look imposing. After much trying a satisfactory picture was obtained and plate made. Proofs had been shown and accepted all the way up and I supposed the matter settled when the senior member of the firm sailed in and kicked the blame thing over saying:

"You don't suppose I'm going to have that picture showing trees, grass and bushes growing in the mill yard, do you?" Biggest glooming mill in the world set in a brush heap!"

The trees and bushes were eliminated and the grass cut and the picture in amended form was accepted though it failed to accurately represent the surroundings.

A to seal was made and first used in the directory and for years after would occasionally ornament important town announcements. It was used up to the adoption of a city charter.

The seal showed the shooting rays of the rising sun back of a mountain, a lake with sailing craft, freight and passenger cars all encircled in a wreath of stockings emblematic of the principal Laconia industries.

Col. Thomas J. Whipple characteristically objected and suggested something which to his mind was altogether more appropriate. There are now some living who will recall with a smile the suggestion made by him.

The residence of the Hon. Richard Gove appeared and in it was himself and young wife and friends as well as the "Fairy Queen" and his bald-headed chauffeur.

This undoubtedly was the first horseless road wagon in the country, if not in the world, and "Dick" was proud of it and believed in its great possibilities if it didn't frighten horses. He was not allowed use of highways but got exhibitions of what it would do on the fair grounds. It was very much like the early Stanley Steamers of a dozen years ago, only more crude.

Hon. Richard Gove was a local character, a jeweler by trade and an exquisite for in make-up and appearance and was supposed to be extremely wealthy. He wore a wig and a shirt front diamond of the size of a small English walnut and his fingers were decked with numerous sparklers and his clothes always fitted and cut in the latest fashion.

No project was too big or too little when once he got started whether it was matrimony or politics. Small in stature quick and alert, he delighted to pose in the realm of self-contained greatness and wisdom. He was a democrat beyond all possible recall and firmly believed Laconia was the true megalithic center of the universe around which all other bodies moved and he was largely responsible for the whole of it.

This is the way it looked to me then and the passing time has not materially changed it. I am carrying a watch I bought of him more than 40 years ago and it keeps accurate time. Mr. Gove guaranteed the watch would last a lifetime and I guess he told the truth.

Burglars blew open the Laconia National Bank in April 1879 and there was great consternation on Main street. They got a number of thousand dollars in money and a good many notes and some Government bonds, also some bonds that were left at the bank as collateral security. The exact dimensions of the haul was never publicly stated.

A suit was brought by Jarvis Sanborn of Lakeport against the bank for the value of bonds left with them for security of his business paper. The bank put up the claim, their responsibility ceased when the burglars broke in as it was a matter beyond their control and therefore refused to make good the loss. The case was entered at the September term of court and was continued to the March term. Opinion as to responsibility was about equally divided and there was much interest in financial circles over the outcome.

Late in November a Mosquito Bridge wood-chopper, named Johnson, I think, came to the Democrat office bringing a sizable bundle tied in a newspaper and wanted us to see what he had found over in the Sanborn wood where he was chopping. It was a tin tray in which were packages of notes and papers that he did not understand.

A glance showed it was the property of the Laconia National Bank and among the papers were the Jarvis Sanborn bonds which had been overlooked or purposely left by the way. The wood-chopper was taken to the bank and given, I think, $50.00 and a good write up in the next edition of the Democrat.

The Sanborn suit did not come to trial and the interesting question of who was responsible for those bonds was never legally determined.

Freemont D. Ellis, printer and showman, was running "a house organ" for Smith, Lougee & Co. Free had learned his trade in the Democrat office a few years back. The firm for which he was then working wanted to dispose of their plant and go out of the printing business. We absorbed it and Ellis took to the road ahead of a show and followed this business some years. I think he came to Norway once as advance agent of the Co. Family.

F. D. Ellis has been with the Brooklyn Daily Eagle for a good many years, and holds a responsible position and life job on their sporting page. I recently saw his picture and a lengthy write up of him in the N. Y. Clipper. I will never recognize the picture, as he is a good looking, well-fed, portly gentleman of sixty years and more. He was slim and angular in his early days and far from being handsome.

Hackett Bros. & Whitcomb started the Benap Roader, a republican paper, and gave us trouble for anxiety for some months as the field was too small for three local papers. One of the Hacketts had recently received a large sum of money from the Boston and Maine Railroad for personal injury sustained while on the test train.

The money came after a long and hotly contested suit and the award was six or eight thousand dollars and with it were to establish a worth-while Republican organ. Neither of the Hacketts had any training or experience in the newspaper business, but they made things lively for a while or until their money or courage was exhausted.

They both died poor I am told, while Ed Whitcomb yet lives in a western state and is engaged in newspaper work. I know the Toscin suspended after I came to Norway and the fond hope of obtaining wealth and fame in local journalism was never realized.

Sometime in the third year of my partnership a difference of opinion began to grow over the course the Democrat should pursue regarding the impending railroad struggle and local political outlook. I sided with one faction and my partner with the other and as he was the editor of the paper, he controlled its policies. I quickly remonstrated and said he was pursuing a course that would split the party and loose democratic control of the country. I felt it would be just as well to bow to the Busiel faction and the B. and M. railroad as to tie up with the Concord Road and politically it would be less dangerous.

Undoubtedly this was handed out to me by the B. & M. interests with the hopes I might swerve the Colonel from the position taken. It could not be done. He had made up his mind and felt it was morally right, just and proper and, like the boy on the burning deck, he was to stay even if the county and town went over to the Republicans.

Let it be said that subsequent events proved Mr. Lewis was right and that some of the democratic machinery which was bringing in influence on me was forced into the Republican party and its leader was made Governor of the State and the town and county were lost to Democracy and have remained so to this day. It is possible if a different course had been pursued by the Laconia Democrat, the result might have been different.

At the time of which I'm writing Chas. A. Busiel was the democratic backbone of Belknap county and a Boston & Maine railroad man. Later he came across and received his reward while Mr. Lewis stuck unwaveringly to the position originally taken and remained in a minority party all his life though not without recognition and some honors.

Mr. Lewis was the original good boy in the fight and lived to see Concord Railroad money build the much needed Lakeshore Railroad and Laconia's palatial depot while Charles Busiel became railroad dictator and a Republican Governor of the state.

I respect the memory of both of these men even though while living they could not see things from the same viewpoint and work together in the same party. Each had their reward.

As time went on it became apparent Mr. Lewis would like to put some one in my place in the office. Suggestions were made as to the desirability of taking into partnership Albert P. Brown, our foreman, and his friend, Charles W. Vaughan, who was the foreman of the opposition office. Failing to see any sense in this, I objected as it would divide profit into four parts and would add no strength to our office and only a temporary blow to the opposition. Vaughan's place on the Toscin could be filled and if he came to our paper he would want to take the place then held by me and a row would follow. My ears were deaf to the Colonel's reasoning, however wise and philanthropic.

Thus stood matters when Col. Lewis took his mid-winter vacation in Washington, D. C. From there he wrote me he would be willing I should sell to Charles Vaughan at such a price as we might agree on between ourselves, would be satisfactory to him. He understood Charles was anxious to buy and would pay all my half was worth and this would be a good opportunity for me to go into the grocery store that Laconia could stand another grocery store. What he meant by this I never knew and he was never able to satisfactorily explain.

Mr. Lewis stated in his letter he thought the Democrat office, including subscription list and accounts due, was worth from four to five thousand dollars. I wrote him that the matter could wait until his return and that we would go over it together as I'd prefer to deal with him rather than with Vaughan or Brown.

I got Rufus S. Lewis, who was registrar of deeds and had spare time and was a brother of my partner, to go over the books and accounts and to close and balance them to a given date. This he did. I didn't tell him I was thinking of selling, but I guess he imagined it.

My partner returned in March and from secret consultation with Brown and Vaughan, I readily saw they intended buying or selling up to admit them as partners. Nothing had been said to me by them during Mr. Lewis' absence or in fact during the time of negotiations. Charles and Brown were silent.

Mr. Lewis reviewed and explained his Washington letter and expressed a desire to take the two boys into this firm if I would sell. The time for the parting had come and he was ready to buy if we could agree on the price. I had not sufficient money to make the purchase and did not know where to get it or feel real sure that I wanted the office, either. I showed Mr. Lewis the inventory of bills received as made out by his brother and he expressed surprise at its size and claimed many of them were uncollectible and worthless. All the known valuable ones were deducted and yet the balance was considerably in excess of six thousand dollars and surely the office good will and business was worth about as much more. It was a case of what he would give and that he wouldn't say. Thus matters stood for several days.

Frank Eagerley met me on the street and said Charles Busiel wanted to see me and as he didn't feel like calling at the Democrat office, he wanted me to come to the mill and see him. The meeting was short and to the point and the conversation ran about the bills.

"I understand you and Colonel Lewis are to separate and it's a give or take question as to whether you or he is to own the office; you have no money and he has a plenty. I want you to buy it and I'll back you for every dollar you want and more too. Go buy it and I'll have Henry Metcalf come up and edit the paper, you be its business manager and we'll have a Democrat paper in this community that is worth something and be of influence. And what do you say to that?"

I thanked him and said I'd see what could be done. When the subject of selling was again brought up I told Mr. Lewis I was in a position to buy and it was simply a question of give or take and asked him to set the price. He didn't seem in the least surprised and quietly said:

"I picked you up at New Hampton without a dollar in the world; I brought you over here and backed you with my money and influence; you and I have been a success in running a newspaper though we have at times disagreed as to certain policies; I have bought real estate, my home is here and if we cannot think alike and get on together, you are the one to leave and not me and if you will say what you will take, I'll pay that last invoice of news stock out of my own pocket. Mind you, I'm to buy Charles Busiel and his crowd are not to own this paper."

This is pretty nearly the speech made to me 35 years ago, a few months before I came to Maine. It came from my friend and benefactor and put me squarely on my honor. I told the good Colonel that I actually believed the Democrat establishment with account due was easily worth more than ten thousand dollars and that I would be satisfied to step down and out for half that sum. It was given.

It was something of a task to convince Mr. Busiel that I had not abused the confidence he had placed in me and let slip a valuable opportunity to have made a good pot of money or saved the paper for him and the interests he represented. I let it pass as I did not want to play the part of highwayman on my partner. I was even accused of lacking courage to stand up for my rights. Mr. Busiel was keenly disappointed in not getting control of the paper through me. He was a man who played the game to the limit and would sometimes smile when others wept and at that time he had no use for Col. Lewis and his "goody-goody-washee-washee Concord Railroad Democracy."

It is a curious incident that some 15 or 18 years later, after Mr. Busiel had passed through the Governor's Chair and the directorates of several railroad corporations that Col. Lewis and his partners sold the paper to him and allowed it to become a Republican Octopus Killer and a General Railroad Smasher but such is the fact. I have joked the Ex-Governor and Mr. Lewis regarding it. For a while the paper was issued daily and its editorials caused much merriment in certain quarters.

It is now back in the hands of the Laconia Press Association—which is Chas. W. Vaughan, whom I consider one of the brightest paragraph writers in New England.

F. W. Sanborn.

ANY CHEST COLD MAY BRING Bronchitis or Tonsillitis

The irritating, tickling cough affects the lung tissue and wears down nature's power to resist disease germs.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

suppresses the cold, allays the inflammation, steadily removes the irritation and rebuilds the resistive power to prevent lung trouble.

SCOTT'S has done more for bronchial troubles than any other one medicine. It contains no alcohol.

SCHOOL TEACHERS

Teaching is wearing work, and only those teachers who take good care of their health can stand the daily strain of the classroom. The dull eyes, pale cheeks, weary head and unstrung nerves of many teachers show the need of building up the nerve-force, improving the blood and helping the general condition. Have you heard of "L. F." McKeen's Medicine? It is a very old home remedy, and entirely reliable. You can take it with the assurance that only good effects follow its use. It is not a "cure-all," but a general conditioner which acts on the stomach, liver and bowels, and by putting these important organs in order, improves the appetite, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves and clears the head. Try a bottle and note how soon you feel its beneficial influence.

Buy a 35c. bottle at your nearest store, or write to-day for free sample.

By invitation the Baptists united with the Methodists for last Sunday evening's service which was "watch night" service, although they did not hold until midnight. The service was held at the regular time and closed a little after nine o'clock with a very interesting and appropriate program. The service began with several selections from their choruses of young ladies, followed by scripture by the pastor, Rev. L. W. Grundy, and a season of prayer led by Rev. Sarah A. Robinson on thankfulness for the Old Year past. This was followed by sermons by each of the pastors, a testimony meeting and closing with a season of prayer for the New Year. A good lot of songs were mixed in and all was very interesting and helpful.
Mrs. S. T. White gave a dinner party in honor of her two nieces, Mildred White of Topsham and Annette L. Austin of South Paris, who have been visiting their ages in the immediate village near the church. Those who were present were Lucy Edwards, Hazel and Bertha Cole, Laura Emery and Edith Gardner, making seven in all at the dinner table. Alice Berry came later and spent the afternoon. Rev. L. W. Grundy and wife went to the Rev. L. W. Grundy for a needed rest and visit to her relatives at Christmas day. Mr. Grundy came back Saturday for the Sunday service, returning for another week of rest. Both are very tired and in poor health. They have both been working beyond their strength since they entered the field in the spring and it is beginning to tell upon their physical strength. The next pulpit and table which was dedicated that night was an ingenious piece of work done by the pastor, Rev. L. W. Grundy. The quartered oak lumber used was given by Epworth League and Mr. Grundy made the pulpit and table in his own home. There was also a new pulpit Bible donated by contributing friends. The president of the Epworth League Howard McKee made presentation speech and O. D. Ellingwood accepted it in the name of the church trustees and officers and the whole service was very enjoyable.

The father died before her birth and Mrs. Perry soon moved to Bridgton, where most of the daughter's childhood and girlhood were passed. For several years she was employed in the office of the Bridgton News.
Nov. 26th, 1874, she was married to W. H. H. Stowell of Paris and their home was in South Paris until Mr. Stowell's death in 1888. She married P. M. Holden and came to the farm in the Porter District, where most of her life has since been passed. After Mr. Holden's death in 1905 she made a home for the grandson, J. M. Holden, until a few months ago she went to keep house for Mr. Wheeler.
Of a lovely disposition, she made friends of all whom she met and will be sincerely missed by many. She was an alumnus of Bridgton Academy and a member of the Baptist church at South Paris.
The funeral was at Waterford Dec. 27, Rev. Sias having charge of the services and she was laid to rest beside her parents in Elmvale Cemetery at South Waterford.

Mr. and Mrs. George Burnham had for weekend guests Mrs. Mary E. Stetson and two children, also Beatrice Smith and Laurie Stetson.
Sheriff Harry D. Cole has moved his family into the jailer's house and Charles O. Graves and family will occupy the premises vacated by the Coles.

PURITY AND POWER

Necessary to Overcome Impure and Weak Condition of the Blood.

The grip, hard colds, pneumonia, fevers, diphtheria and other blood-poisoning, prostrating diseases leave the whole system subnormal—below par—weak and slow—blood depleted and thin, with that tired feeling, poor appetite, delicate digestive power or almost none at all.
The ideal treatment is Hood's Sarsaparilla—thoroughly to purify the blood and expel poisons, and "Pepton Pills, the new pepsin, nux and iron tonic—to put power into the blood, give strength, increase red corpuscles and restore normal health—hood's Sarsaparilla has in forty years won and held the favor of the people, almost to the exclusion of other sarsaparillas and blood purifiers. Begin this course of medicine today. Any druggist will supply you.

HEARING ON BETHEL WRECK

The Public Utilities Commission held the preliminary hearing concerning the Bethel wreck, the witnesses being ordered to Portland Friday, meeting being held in the Cumberland County Court House.

The Grand Trunk was represented by their attorney, H. P. Sweetser of Portland and County Attorney Albert B. Eaton of Bethel was present in his official capacity, watching evidence which might lead to criminal proceedings if deemed necessary. All three members of the Commission were present: Judge Benjamin F. Cleaver of Biddeford, Wm. P. Mullen of Lewiston and Charles W. Mullen of Bethel.

It developed during the hearing that orders were first issued by Train Dispatcher John L. Burns of Richmond, P. Q. for the two trains to cross at West Bethel. These were issued to the west bound freight at South Paris and the train for Portland received said order at Gorham, N. H. Superceding orders were later issued for a meeting at Gilead. Operator Graham at Gorham delivered these to Conductor Wentworth who claims he sent them ahead to engineer W. L. Chase. Conductor Delyrin received his later instructions on the west bound at Bethel, thoroughly understood the change so passed West Bethel for the "meet" at Gilead as ordered.

Brakeman Lurvey who carried the two sets of instructions to Engineer Chase, contrary to the rules, spoke to Chase about the change of crossings but didn't remember seeing orders in his lot to that effect, both thinking Wentworth must have been mistaken. Neither made any effort to untangle the conflicting situation and the east bound train pulled out of Gorham yard toward its doom sixteen miles before. Following the first instructions, Engineer Chase passed Gilead, but the crew in the caboose behind did not notice whether the freight from Portland was on the siding or not.

The death of Engineer Winifred L. Chase in the hospital at Berlin, N. H., January 1 brings the total to five victims who were either crushed to death or fatally scalded. A continued hearing was expected after Chase gained strength for the ordeal, but under the circumstances just what will be done is uncertain for the present.

What is believed to be the largest life insurance policy ever written in Maine is that announced by the management of the Oxford Paper Co. of Rumford. The total insurance is about $1,000,000 and is on the lives of the 1500 or more employees of the two companies. A schedule has been arranged whereby the men are graded according to the nature of their employment.

The men after six months' service will be insured to the amount of $500 and the insurance will be increased $50 or $100 per year according to grade until the maximum of $2000 is reached and thereafter the policy on their lives will be continued at that sum. There are also total disability clauses whereby the injured will receive the insurance in stipulated sums at stated intervals until the face of their policy has been paid.

This came as a New Year's gift to the men who will reap the benefits of life insurance without any expense to themselves. The policy was written by Geo. M. Barney of Portland, State agent for the Travelers' Insurance Co. of Hartford.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

J. O. Crockett in the Cattle Business
The following is taken from a Richmond, Ind. paper concerning Mr. Crockett.

J. O. Crockett of El Paso, head of the famous Crockett Cattle company, was a visitor on the Fort Worth market recently, when his concern sold a nice consignment of sheep. This consignment consisted of 418 stocker lambs averaging 49 pounds, at $3.50 and 529 stocker ewes averaging 64 pounds, at $6.50. D. B. Crouch of Hale Center, one of the officials of the company, accompanied the shipment.

"The Crockett Cattle company is one of the largest concerns of its kind in Texas, or the entire United States, for that matter. It makes a specialty of the hog business. It raises more hogs than any one concern in the state and markets them at Fort Worth, which Mr. Crockett calls 'the only logical market for the Texas hog producer.' The company has three large hog ranches in the Plainview region, sometimes called the 'piggiest section of Texas.' Its shipments come to this market at least every other week. Mr. Crockett also is interested in the Texas Land and Development company, another large enterprise of the Plainview country.

"Mr. Crockett is very enthusiastic about the hog business in Texas and avers it is still in its infancy.
"The farmers are just beginning to realize what the hog means to them and they are going into the business with more enthusiasm and on a larger scale every year," he said.

John O. Crockett is the son of the late C. C. Crockett and was born and reared in Norway. He went to Richmond, Ind., when a young man and commenced his railroad career.

Had it not been for the late John F. Crockett, C. C. Crockett and Supt. John F. Miller, the strike on the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis R. R. would have brought the R. R. to the strikers' terms. During the strike John F. Crockett drove the engine from Richmond to Chicago with the mail car and on his engine were ten armed men. John O. Crockett commenced working for the R. R. by carrying dispatches and for many years he has been superintendent on different roads. He is now located in Texas, where there is a superintendent of a road leading from El Paso and he has a fine home in that city.

Selectmen's Office Completed and Occupied

The interior of the new Norway Selectmen's headquarters is finished and the transfer of the town's property completed.

This addition on the rear of the Opera House gives more space for work and better accommodations to all concerned. A small hall, one good sized general business room and a private office, where First Selectman, Geo. W. Holmes sits enthroned, comprises the suite as now arranged. Chairs and desks occupy the main room, while the inner office contains a built in vault, large closet for books and a flush.

The walls have smooth finish and painted a straw color, having a wide out border around the ceiling of each room. Allwood work is painted the same straw shade. These rooms are also together attractive and a decided improvement over the former location.

Bad Break at Pumping Station
A break in the suction pipe that extends under the foundation of the pumping station into the lake, caused a shut down Saturday. The gate was opened between the Norway and South Paris systems and we used our neighbors' goods well into the week.

Frank Gammon, the superintendent noticed trouble Friday when the big pump that forces 750 gallons of water into the reservoir every minute it is in action, failed to keep up the regular action level. An investigation for a broken main in the village was started, but nothing of that nature could be found. Everything about the reservoir or pump was all right, so this led the searchers to the intake pipe. A hole was cut through twelve inches of ice over the pipe opening, then the cause of shortage was located.

Sunday the Water Company had Chas. Walker, Joe Dubey and Chas. Dearborn chopping a hole five feet square through the ice next the station foundation wall. Bags of sand were sunk, forming a coffer dam from which the water was pumped Monday. Everything was ready to proceed with repairs when water rushed in through one side and the workmen did some scrambling and got out before the hole eight feet deep filled.

More bags were placed and more hand pumping ensued until the pipe was found and necessary repairs made.

Twenty-four Years Ago This Week

The town treasurer has put the money into the Norway National Bank to pay interest on the town debt.

Representative J. A. Roberts started for Augusta, Tuesday morning. His family accompanied him and will spend the winter there.

H. L. Horne recently bought a dozen or more horses in Houlton. They were brought here the first of the week.

The Beal's Hotel under the new proprietorship of F. D. Lowell had a reception last Wednesday evening. It was tendered to the business men and ladies of the village. Clam chowder and oysters were served, with music and dancing. Stearns and Norworth's orchestra furnished music and the festivities were kept to an early hour.

Independents Defeated, Had Big Trip

Norway Independents, a basket ball quintet of college boys met the Colebrook alumni team in that town Friday night, going the limit fast, but losing the game to the New Hampshire graduates 20-11. The teams, according to report, appeared evenly matched. Norway having a little the best of it during the first ten minutes. They secured the ball on the start, passing it around at will, but could not locate the baskets for points.

At the end of the first half the score was 9-7 in favor of Colebrook. During the second period a complication of jinks held the Maine boys down. They handled the sphere neatly which was in their possession a large share of the time, but to shoot goals was a difficult feat. The ball just wouldn't pitch the winning direction, but hung on the inch wide rim as though glued.

The game was swift and cleanly played only two fowls being called on each team. No rough tactics were attempted nor the usual tonguey wrangles experienced. A novelty to our boys was a formal introduction of each player to the big crowd, by the referee. This innovation came close to throwing the Norwegians into a "stage fright," but they stepped out like good little boys and bobbed the head as each name was called, each living to tell the tale.

The line-up was as follows: Ned Shepard, C. Sim, Andrews, J. F. Sumner, Davis, I. F. Jake, Klein, I. G. Peter, Klein, R. G. Raymond, Evers, sub. Sim was business manager and conducted the campaign to the satisfaction of all. The fellows had a fine time and were treated royally.

The team had a date with the Berlin Y. M. C. A. on Saturday evening, but was called off at the eleventh hour for reasons unknown to manager Andrews.

Big Load Corn Boxes Weighing Four Ton

Saturday forenoon, December 30, V. R. Mills drove into town with a sled body holding 353 corn boxes from Harry Brown's mill at North Waterford, the largest load ever hauled away from that place. Mr. Mills informed us the big pile weighed about 8,000 pounds, but the roads were excellent and required only one pair of horses to get this huge ark here. This beats the auto truck for number of boxes and weight, that be of capable of handling less than two tons made up cases.

Pipes conducting steam for heating were frozen tight over Sunday, therefore Buster Brown and his crew of Novelty turners enjoyed a half holiday Monday.

William A. Bicknell has been taking account of stock in C. B. Cummings & Sons, Co's Bemis store. He returned home the middle of the week.

On Sunday, Jan. 7, 1917, the service at the Congregational Church will be of a special nature. In the morning at 10:40 the pastor's sermon theme will be "The Revealer of Christ." In the evening at 7 o'clock War pictures will be shown that were made in Armenia. These pictures have been used in many churches about Boston, and accurately portray war conditions in Turkey. All are invited.

EVERY DAY LOCAL PICK UPS

Legislature meets this week and Bert Andrews and others are there.

Shooting stars and meteor showers are to be conspicuous in August and November, thus says the Farmers' Almanac.

The citizen who does his trading at home, in the long run gets better value for his money and at the same time helps build up his town.

Time was when the Norway postoffice wouldn't have a telephone. It would be a great bother to the postmaster and clerks. It's different now and a big accommodation to the public.

Unkept, untidy, unclean and unreasonably so is the condition in which I found Central Engine House Hall last Thursday. It was very much like Cobbler's Hall which is abandoned.

A small boy on skis was pushing himself up street and I asked him what such contrivances on his feet cost. "Nothing, sir, and they just fit the price." "Your boy's name was David Keith Spofford."

Don Andrews will graduate in a few weeks from Bryant & Stratton Commercial College, Boston. It's taken about fifty weeks and has cost more than a pair of good draft horses with the harnesses thrown in.

Now that I have nothing to do but eat, drink, sleep and keep out of the way of busy people, brimstone matches are too slow for me. Have been using the other kind and to return to a Portland Star match is much like riding behind a horse after using an auto. "Too slow!"

Charles Ridlon tells of a man and wife in his store in the strawberry season and the lady suggested getting a box of strawberries to take home but the man vetoed it as too expensive and walked to show case and bought a quarter of cigars and never a murmur came from the good woman as to unnecessary family expenses. Vote for women!

I don't ask you to read "Trials, Struggles and Triumphs from the Cradle to Old Age," which are appearing in installments under the caption of "Big Barn Door Sketches in this paper. No, sir, if you like, or read it if you will, it is all the same to me.

Clarence D. Waters of Montpelier, Vt., who through the tolerance of State Legislature, Congress at Washington and several State Legislatures, is permitted to run 7-3 railroad signs. "Your sketches remind me of Kipling's 'Mul-evey, who was a devil of a man, a corporal, before he was reduced.'"

Now just think of it! Only a corporal in industry when you thought and are now writing as though you were the whole thing. To be thus cruelly treated is terrible!

Wallace Sheen came here to work for B. F. Spimney & Co. 21 years ago. He boarded at the Beals Hotel and ate at the same table with the writer. There was a tale he named Alta Kapp, who later changed her name to Sheen. His home was bought on Pearl street where they have lived for some years past.

Wallace Sheen retired from military duty last year with the rank of Sergeant-Major after 26 years service in this state and Massachusetts. Wallace says business at Beals Hotel is good and work is steady, something different than the earlier days. I hope it will continue so.

Levi Richardson has a con skin coat. It's a good looking one and he has had it nine years. It is soft and pliable as the before election ways of an office seeker. It was a present to him and cost $35.00. Replying to the query as to who gave it he said, "George Holmes." I asked him if it was the first selectman Holmes and he shot a knowing wink indicating he wanted the listeners to carry the story.

"Four years ago," said Levi, "Henry Foster offered $75.00 for this coat and he'd got it if it hadn't been given me. If the coat was new today it would bring a hundred and a quarter easy," said Richardson turning up the collar and stroking the fur.

I don't like it, it's too expensive. I'd rather have five dollars and could then over the horse and on my return see him standing on it without giving me a shock. See how smooth and light and soft and pliable it is and it is warm I tell you, but it's too rich for my blood; the kind you can throw into the pung and let the dogs lay on is better suited for me, but I'll sell a present you know," and he walked out into the cold looking like a millionaire.

Hold your breath or skip it, as here is something political: The cities are not so well governed and administered as the towns, for it is only in the towns that the matters of municipal business are put directly before the voters. The voters in the cities find it too much bother, to chase the officials unless they are after something. That neglect by the voters is the source of opportunity of the power that the city political boss exercises. As long as the people neglect the public business, the boss will flourish. The schemes for getting rid of the boss by mechanical means are many.

Some years ago the Australian ballot was expected to redeem the country and restore power to the people. It didn't do it. The primary election was the next project, and it hasn't yet redeemed the people anywhere. It has given Maine at least one governor according to one party faith—who would not have been big enough to get the job if he had had to face a convention and be nominated by a majority of men who personally had seen him and sized him up.

An Oxford County lawyer once told me that the primary-election law would prevent Burleigh going to the U. S. Senate, because Burleigh was a man of the boss type and the people would turn him away if they got a chance. He learned better, and while writing this I will remark that Burleigh was, during the time of his senatorship, not only the ablest man in the Maine Republican party, but a successful man in getting what he was after without making so much trouble as would some of the unsuccessful ones.

Today, there is a howl for the initiative, the referendum and the recall. I have not yet learned of any gain for the people, as against the boss, which has been accomplished by the initiative, while the "referendum" has been found to work in the hands of the boss.

Maine got the initiative and referendum, head of the primary election, but the primary election is the older device in American politics. This does not refer to the "old right" of the Legislature to order a referendum, but to the scheme for a referendum by petition.

Another enthusiast told me that the initiative and referendum would prevent the lawyers cumbering the statute books with so many laws that the people cannot understand. The result has been the other way, for the initiative and referendum have led to increased confusion of laws, and the lawyers are needed more than scribes and interpreters and explainers of the statutes.

The recall has not yet been tried in my sight, but it failed in an attempt to oust the mayor of Gardiner, and is not accomplishing what its advocates claimed in some of the far western states.

The woman suffrage cry is coming down the pike, and both the 1916 candidates for President endorsed it. Well, if you get woman suffrage in Maine, you will find a new place for town meetings necessary in Norway, for the present place will not accommodate fifteen hundred voters to do the business of making the annual appropriations. You will want a city government or a commission government or some other more expensive arrangement than the present one of having the voters thrash the matter out. I have never seen this certain result of the woman suffrage mentioned anywhere, but it will mean in many towns either the building of a town hall with public money or the abandonment of town government for a government that is not so efficient besides being more expensive.

Meanwhile the great evil of public neglect of public affairs is not lessened. We are now trying to get all the scholars in town into one building and find that building is too small. I advocate bringing in the abandoned rural school houses and putting them on the grounds recently bought by the town for beautifying and enlarging school property. Why not?

Max G. Noyes, son of "Shavvy" Noyes was in Portland Saturday and passed the examinations at the Navy Recruiting station. He left Tuesday for final enlistment and will go to Newport, R. I. to enter the naval training school for a four months' course before being assigned to a cruiser.

Annette Washburn of New York was the week-end guest of Mrs. William Stanton. Miss Washburn was a former teacher in music and drawing in the Norway schools.

Mrs. Wm. F. Jones was the speaker of the evening at the Rumford Parent-Teachers' Association at Rumford Tuesday evening at the Stephens school. Mrs. Jones is an officer of the State Parent-Teachers' association. She also spoke at the meeting of the Virginia Association Monday evening.

Arthur Lewis is probably one of the proudest boys in town. Arthur delivers papers to the shoe factories and through the efforts of Annie Bagley, the stitching room help of the Carroll-Jellerson Co. contributed generously and purchased a boy's watch with chain. This new gift was appreciated, being the first real time piece the little fellow could call his own.

The Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Cole returned to New York Friday. They were Miss Jewett, professional nurse; Miss E. J. Hofer, a superintendent of the New York City schools and her assistant, Miss J. P. Williams. This was the first experience of two in the party with a Maine winter, and they were delighted with the sleigh rides which brought them close to our snow covered woods and rugged hills. They carried back sample of shelled beans in the pod and stalks of corn with husks, and specimens that have not been seen by pupils in the lower East Side schools. Late in the fall a large package containing lichens was forwarded to school No. 79 Tournay street in the same district, which caused a sensation among the pupils, being a great curiosity.

A collection was taken for the Armenians in Christ Church when services were held recently by Bishop Thomas Brewster. Nearly seven dollars was contributed and forwarded to the New York headquarters.

IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT

In the dead of night when pain was severe and doctors distant, when some loved one seemed to be threatened with serious consequences, have you ever caught up, with a sob of thankfulness, a bottle of your favorite family remedy? We don't know why you consider your favorite family remedy, but if you had confidence inspired by the knowledge that it had been successfully serving humanity for more than 100 years, then it must be Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. And you were doubly fortified, for you had, in Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, a preparation not only powerful and penetrating in cases of bad sprains, strains, muscular rheumatism, any ache, pain, or soreness, but also one you could safely and unhesitatingly administer inwardly for sore throat, coughs, colds, cramps, chills, and like ailments, when necessary to have its wonderful healing and soothing qualities go direct to the seat of an internal trouble. It is rightly termed "an angel in disguise."—adv.
